HONGKONG, JULY 28th, 1910.

In the absence of any official statement concerning the hunting down of the Colowan pirates, and in view of the conflicting reports published in the local Press, it is difficult to gauge the true state of affairs at Colowan, or to comment on the measures adopted by the Portuguese in putting an end to a situation which a few months ago would have been deemed impossible. It is generally considered, however, that the capture of the pirates has been unduly prolonged, and that the escape of a large number of them was due to the incompetent direction of affairs. For our part, we would prefer to await an official report before coming to conclusions which might prove erroneous. True, it is nearly a fortnight since the pirates' stronghold was discovered, and when the outlaws refused to surrender the Portuguese adopted measures which promised speedy submission. But since the bombardment the action taken appears to have been anything but energetic, and after these many days some of the pirates are said to be still at large. Commodore Wo's statements to our representative that the Portuguese "did not seem to like to catch the pirates," and that "he left Colowan because he was sick of it," are suggestive. Had the gallant Commodore been in charge of operations we may take it that the issue would have been brief.

The alternative to prompt surrender would have been, in all probability, immediate aggression. Chinese troops would have been led forthwith to the fray, and it might not have been long before all the pirates were killed or captured; but at considerable loss of life. It may be that the Portuguese were actuated by more humane motives. Their courage is beyond dispute, for it has been proved, and in this instance it is possible that the officer commanding wished to keep the death roll as low as possible.

This seems the only feasible reason for the long-drawn delay in allowing the curtain to drop on an unpleasant Eastern act which at home will be read as a story from the realm of romance. Whatever the reason for the supposed delay, it is evident that the trouble is now practically at an end. The warships have been withdrawn from the island as well as a number of the troops, but the garrison has been strengthened, presumably to meet any contingency that may arise. As an outcome of this affair, it is distressing to observe the attitude adopted by a certain section of the Chinese, in the minds of whom, apparently, the ill-feeling which was the result of the boundary dispute still rankles. With two equally matched prize-fighters rivalry will prevail until one gains a decisive victory, and so with regard to the Macao Boundary question, disputes will continue until a definite settlement is established. This is the first opportunity, since the dissolving of the abortive Commission, that the anti-foreign agitators, patriots, or whatever else they style themselves, have had an opportunity of re-igniting this much vexed question, and they are taking advantage of it. Because Colowan is part of the territory in dispute, some Chinese have gone so far as to side with the outlaws, whom in other circumstances they would fear as much as they would shun. The Portuguese is branded as a usurper, and the pirate is exalted as a patriot. It is plainly manifest, however, that such a view could be taken only by a section of agitators or revolutionaries. The law-abiding Chinese, who have suffered for a lifetime at the hands of the desperadoes whose trade is plunder and murder, would not, even for the satisfaction of having the boundary question settled, join issue with their natural enemy, the pirates. But the agitator is not particular from which direction the spark blows, so long as it ignites and spreads among the masses, while the revolutionary, in any trouble that may arise, always hopes to see a chance of overthrowing the dynasty. Our Canton Correspondent recently wrote stating that he heard the people of Hongshan were very excited over late events and were openly in sympathy with the pirates, whom they regarded as patriots. "There is talk," he continued "of an organised attack to be made on the Portuguese Settlement, but it is probable that these stories have very little foundation. Nevertheless, the people of the Hongshan district are a very turbulent set, and it would take very little to rouse them to make trouble."

That's just it. It is all talk just now, mostly froth and bubble, but it is extending over the Empire, and unless it is checked it may develop into something more serious. Most of this world's troubles emanate from discontented talk, and in China the tirade of the agitator is often followed by action. Once the minds of the masses are inflamed, the right or wrong of a cause is past consideration. And this is what these malcontents are now apparently bent on doing: inflaming the minds of the people with imaginary wrongs to their country, and thereby stirring up strife. But the Peking Government has successfully intervened on such occasions before, and no doubt on this occasion they will take adequate steps to prevent disorder arising, and will find means to suppress the agitators. As far as the Colowan affair is concerned, it is almost impossible to believe that the existence of this large band of pirates on the island was unknown to the Portuguese officials stationed there, especially in view of the fact that the outlaws appear to have retained numerous captives. But, no doubt, an inquiry will be held, and the true facts connected with the affair will be established.

The Siberian Mail of the 4th July was delivered in London on the 24th inst.

Mr. J. Dickinson, American Secretary for War, arrived at Manila on Monday.

The Chinese who was charged with stealing a sum of nearly $10,000 from a shop in Wing Lok Street was discharged by Mr. J. R. Wood at the Magistracy yesterday.

An Italian barber in the employ of Messrs. Campbell, Moore & Co., was ordered by Mr. J. R. Wood at the Magistracy yesterday to pay a fine of $10 and $2 compensation for assaulting a coolie.

From the American Consulate-General, Hongkong, we have received a copy of the telegram quoted, which was despatched from the Manila Observatory at 10.50 a.m. yesterday:—Cyclone or typhoon E. of Naha moving N.W.

Before Mr. E. B. Hallifax at the Magistracy yesterday a native was charged with entering the house of Mr. Savage, chief sorter at the Post Office, and stealing a watch and chain, a number of liquor glasses and a blanket. The offence was proved, and the thief was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment with hard labour.

The naval authorities in Java feel uneasy about increasing colour-blindness among officers. Those in the torpedo and signalling services will have their eyes tested. All naval officers will be forbidden to wear spectacles. Those wearing them now will be exempted and will be retained in the service, but they lose all chance of promotion in the torpedo and surveying branches.

June, 1910, will be remembered as an abnormal month in Sandakan, says the B. N. E. Herald. The rainfall has been most unusual for this time of the year and has put a stop to tennis, cricket and all outdoor games. The total rainfall registered at the Civil Hospital was 13.58 inches on 18 days. The rainfall for June, 1909, was 7.59 inches. Reports from Kudat and Jesselton also record unusual rains.

In many parts of Java, the people are planting rubber on their own account—too much so in the opinion of some officials. For instance, at one place, the district officer ordered all the rubber plants to be rooted out on the ground that the upkeep of the plantations would be too heavy a burden on the people. His superiors have since called him to account for it.

Hard times are in store for the Opium Regie in Indo-China, which draws two-thirds of its supplies of the drug from China. It is feared that shortly the Chinese government will prohibit altogether the exportation of opium from its territory. Indo-China will then have to turn to India, where restriction is now shortening the supply. These rocks ahead will be a source of serious dangers to the Regie.

Negotiations for restoring Taku to China have been held between the Waiwui and the Diplomatic Corps in Peking, but so far nothing has been concluded. A Peking dispatch states that the conditions of the restoration are as follows: 1—No fortress will be allowed to be constructed there. 2—Taku will not be allowed to be transformed into a naval station. 3—No arsenal will be allowed to be established there. If China agrees to these three articles Taku will be restored to her.

PIRATE HUNT AT COLAWAN.
[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

MACAO, July 26th.

Since the discovery of the entrance to the caves occupied by the pirates the land force has had a busy time endeavouring to clear every living creature out of these holes. During the night firing was maintained between the soldiers and the robbers at bay, and to-day more than thirty men and women have been sent over here for safe custody.

Attempts have been made to smoke the pirates from their lair, sulphur and other material being burnt at the mouths of the caves, and several desperate people have been glad to rush out and risk meeting the soldiers.

The gunboat Patia went to Colowan last night. The hunting will be resumed again to-day, as it is believed there are many people still in hiding.

AN INTERESTING YARN.
The Peking Daily News says in a recent issue:—

There is absolutely no truth in a recent report which appears to have originated from Hongkong, to the effect that there has been trouble between the Chinese and the Portuguese in the vicinity of Macao. According to this report an attack was made by a gang of pirates on the Portuguese soldiers who were patrolling the roads leading from certain Chinese villages in the vicinity of Macao, and that three of these soldiers were killed and four wounded. In order to avenge this attack, the Macao Government was said to have sent Portuguese gunboats which attacked the villages, many of the inhabitants of which were killed.

In addition to this, the Macao Government proposed to establish martial law in the district. It is needless to add that the above report is a pure fabrication and has not the least foundation in fact.

PRINCE LEAVES FOR POLAR WATERS.
The steamship Maia, which is visiting Arctic waters in order to ascertain if an attempt to reach the North Pole in a Zeppelin airship is feasible, has left Kiel.

She had on board, Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia. The Princess, however, will leave the vessel at Brunsbüttel, a port at the western end of the Kiel Canal.

The Maia carries a small and select party of experts and an elaborate scientific equipment.

She touches at Bergen and Tromsø, and then steams direct to Spitzbergen. From there the party embarks on a small Norwegian ice steamer, the Phœnix, which will take them into those northern seas where it is necessary to make observations.

The ice steamer will remain in wireless telegraphic communication with the Maia.

SHANGHAI FINANCIAL CRISIS.

SHANGHAI, July 26th.

The rubber boom has drained all ready money from the Settlement towards the Straits and depleted the native banks of specie.

The failure of a prominent Chinese merchant has resulted, and four native banks are closing, being unable to meet native ten day orders.

Two and a half millions are held by foreign banks against goods delivered, and a crisis is threatened.

The Chinese Authorities, Bankers' Guild and Chamber of Commerce, and foreign banks have held a meeting, as a result of which the native banks have obtained a loan of three and a half lakhs from foreign banks to enable them to honour native orders and prevent further crashes.

PEKING, July 27th.

The Central Government approves of the Shanghai Taotai's scheme for obtaining two 3,500,000 from foreign banks to relieve the native banks at Shanghai.

NEW JAPANESE TARIFF.

LONDON, July 26th.

Mr. Buxton, replying to a question in the House of Commons to-day, said that the Board of Trade were fully alive to the probable detrimental effects on British trade from the new Japanese tariff. Many representations had been received, careful inquiries were being made, and Sir Edward Grey was in communication with the Japanese Government on the subject.

A CASHIER'S FRAUDS.

LONDON, July 26th.

Besides the $600,000 (gold) belonging to the Russo-Chinese Bank, Wider, the cashier who absconded from the New York branch, is also reported to have taken $500,000 in bonds belonging to customers.

THE INDIAN ESTIMATES.

LONDON, July 27th.

On the debate on the Indian Estimates in the House of Commons to-day, the Hon. E. S. Montagu said the new treaty with Bhutan was evidence of the Government's intention not to allow foreign interference in Nepal, Sikkim or Bhutan. He was glad that those states shared in the determination as regards Tibet. The Government had made it clear to China that they would require strict conformity with the Anglo-Tibetan Convention of 1904 and the Anglo-Chinese Treaty of 1906. The assurances received from the Chinese Government left nothing to fear regarding its good faith. Referring to the opium question, Mr. Montagu said that China claimed that she had reduced her output by more than three-tenths. There was no absolute proof that this was so, but there was no reason to doubt it. His Majesty's Government accordingly waived the production of statistical proofs and offered China an extension of the agreement for three years more. With reference to the suggestions to shorten the period, China itself suggested ten years, but it was not suggested that there should be any reduction nor any alteration which would involve serious administrative financial considerations. The Government was examining in a friendly spirit America's tentative programme for another Opium Conference to be held at the Hague, but could not agree to a discussion of Britain's diplomatic relations with China. It was also desirable to know whether the Powers were willing to deal with the exportation of morphia and cocaine to the East.

SUPREME COURT.

Wednesday, July 27th.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR MR. F. A. HAZELAND (ACTING JUSTICE OF THE PEACE).

THE STORY OF A BLOUSE.

Miss A. Rosa, of "Le Chic" dressmaking establishment, Kowloon, sued Mrs. M. Piggett to recover $11.35 cents for work done and material supplied. Plaintiff was represented by Mr. J. H. Gardiner, and defendant did not appear.

Defendant's husband informed the Court that his wife was ill and could not attend. The whole question was that his wife never had the goods. The things she had she paid for.

His Lordship—I don't see how we can get on without her.

Mr. Gardiner said the transaction was that plaintiff and another carried on business in Kowloon under the style of "Le Chic." Defendant ordered certain goods which were supplied to her and a reasonable price was charged. Among other things she ordered seven blouses. At that time she was expecting some money from a fight in which her husband was concerned.

His Lordship—We can't go into that.

Mr. Gardiner said he was only explaining the position. Defendant subsequently took an old-fashioned blouse to plaintiff with instructions to re-make it according to latest models. When it was finished defendant said she wanted an evening blouse, and not a morning blouse.

His Lordship—I don't see how we can get on without defendant: it is only wasting time.

Sergeant Piggett—My wife is under medical treatment and will be for some time. I know as much about it as my wife; I was there when the things were ordered and I paid the money.

His Lordship—There is no chance of a settlement?

Mr. Gardiner—I think we will have to fight the question of the blouse out.

His Lordship said it was impossible to go on with the case in the absence of defendant, and adjourned it sine die.

HEAVY SENTENCES PASSED ON SNATCHERS.

A Chinese woman, and a boy of fifteen, appeared before Mr. J. R. Wood at the Magistracy yesterday on charges of snatching. The two defendants, and a third rogue who escaped, appear to have worked together. Their first victim was the four year old daughter of a dentist, whose earrings were pulled from her ears while sitting at the door of her home. A few days later as a girl of nine years was walking along the Wanchoi Road the defendant accosted her, snatched her earrings and ran away. A subsequent theft was committed at the Coffee Plantation. A small boy and girl, whom the accused met in Kowloon Street, were lured to the plantation by promises of beads and presents, and when they arrived there the thieves relieved the girl of her earrings and departed. His Worship sentenced the man to nine months' imprisonment with hard labour, four hours' stocks and twelve strokes of the birch, and the youth, who had a previous conviction, to four months' imprisonment and twelve strokes of the birch.

BAND CONCERT.

The second band performance in the Botanic Gardens took place last night and proved very enjoyable to those who attended. The number was larger than before and most of the seats were occupied. The musicians had the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts were appreciated, and the Buffs Band added considerably to its local reputation.

DEATH OF THE HON. C. S. ROLLS.

London, July 12th.

Mr. Rolls was about to alight for the competition, and was coming down in front of the stand, when the tailpiece seemed to break. The machine gave a violent lurch and fell at a terrific speed in a straight line to the spinning round, framework buckled in the air, spinning round, his legs entangled in the framework. The doctors carefully extricated him, and vainly attempted to revive him. Death was instantaneous and was due to concussion of the brain. The disaster was witnessed by crowds. Expert eye-witnesses declare that the pivot of the tail of Mr. Rolls's machine snapped. The bamboo stay broke and allowed the propeller to start the work of destruction. It is believed that an abrupt descent against the wire for the purposes of landing in the alighting ring overstrained the machine. The crowd was horror-stricken and distressed at the catastrophe to the favourite.

The American cruiser Rainbow arrived here yesterday from Manila.

CANTON.

KILLED BY A TIGER.

At Tak Hing there lived a poor widow who got her living by working in the fields. Her home was in a little hut which she had built about three miles out of the village. Here she lived with her two orphaned grandchildren, aged respectively 11 and 7. A few nights ago the unfortunate woman went down to the stream to bathe and while on the bank she was seized and carried off by a tiger. The poor children waited for their grandmother to return, but in vain. The next day they went to the village and told about her disappearance. Search was made for her and a few mutilated fragments of her body were discovered in a field some distance from her hut.

INCONSISTENCIES.

In a curious article the editor of one of the local papers says that the actions of the Provincial Government are like those of a childish game. He then proceeds to point out a number of inconsistencies. The police prohibit the making of speeches in the public streets, but the Military Bureau send out men to make speeches on the usefulness of surveying. The police wish to restrict gambling, but the financiers are powerful enough to set the law at defiance and to keep the houses open until a late hour. The police have prohibited actresses, but police officers are guilty of immoral conduct with these women. The Imperial Government prohibit illegal modes of punishment, but provincial magistrates apply it at their will. The Imperial Government wish to put an end to gambling, but the officials devote their spare time to "Ma Cheuk Pai." The Imperial Government has prohibited the trade in human beings, but the officials buy girls for concubines.

LIKIN TROUBLES.

It is reported that the Viceroy has received a dispatch from Peking ordering him to give an explanation of the many reports of the mismanagement of the likin system that have reached the capital. It is said that the accounts are falsified, bribery goes on to a large extent, and that merchants having plenty of money are able by means of a "present" to the right person to get their goods through without trouble. It is also stated that many of the posts in the likin service are mere sinecures, and that hundreds of expectant and their friends are fattening on money which should go to the coffers of the State. If these charges indeed be true, there is likely to be a good deal of trouble in official circles concerning it.

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS.

Three prisoners confined in the Nam Hoi gaol yesterday made their escape, and a reward of a hundred dollars each has been offered for their recapture. To-day the two wardens on duty are to receive punishment, one a hundred strokes and the other double that number.

ROBBERY AT SUN WUI.

A daring case of armed robbery has occurred at Sun Wui in the Sun Wui District. A band of armed robbers raided the house of a rich family named Au, and afterwards looted the houses of six other families. Several boys, a slave girl and an infant, besides much property, were taken away. The most wonderful thing is that to get to the village the bandits had to pass a military camp, and the soldiers saw them going, and also saw them return with their prisoners and plunder, but made no attempt to interfere with them. One can only come to the conclusion in cases like this that these soldiers are either arrant cowards, or are in league with the robbers.

Mr. Werner Laurie is publishing shortly "Thirty-five years in the Divorce Court, Leaves from a Reporter's Note Book," by Henry Edwin Fenn. The author was for 30 years reporter for the Divorce Court to the Daily Telegraph. His work is of a unique character, and never before has one been published dealing with five Presidents of the Divorce Division, commencing with Lord Hannon, the chief builder of divorce law. Mr. Fenn includes character sketches of well-known practitioners, and the work is replete with anecdotes, treating in a chatty way all the principal matters that come before the Court. The following are among some of the subjects touched:—Paternity in the Divorce Court; Why Prosecutions are so rare; Damages from One Farthing to £25,000; Platonic Love; Niggling Wives; Cruelly Gossiped on the Part of Husbands and Wives; Suggested "Court of Conciliation"; Children and Divorce; Confessions of Wives; Private Detectives and their Methods; The King's Proctor and His Duties; Mothers-in-law and their Influence on Divorce; Lady Litigants; The Benefits of Publicity; Witnesses and their Ways and Abuse of Cross-examination.

REVIEWS.

The History of China. By DEMETRIUS C. BOUTON. London: W. Thacker & Co.

The re-appearance of this standard work is an event of considerable literary importance in the Far East. Since the publication of the first edition the subject of the Chinese Empire and people has become of greater interest and more direct moment not only to the English reader, but to the world, a fact which justifies the publication in compact and convenient form of the present revised edition.

The task set himself by the author is no light one. To glean from the mass of tradition and apparent contradiction in records of doubtful value something reliable is a work of great difficulty, calling not only for a wide discrimination but an extensive knowledge, and the application and diligence which the historian has exercised in this great undertaking has received its reward in the recognition accorded the work. Not only does the history itself receive the approbation of those competent to pronounce upon its accuracy, but it merits the approval of the ordinary reader, the man or woman who, taking up the book with a dread that it would contain a dull and prosy record of doubtful historical events, finds instead that it reads like a novel. It is as fascinating as a romance. A literary style, distinguished by its lucidity and forcefulness of expression, is not the least merit of the author, who has laid the growing number interested in China under a deep obligation.

It is of course stating the obvious to say that a perusal of this work will prove informative. It is not too exhaustive to prove bewildering to the ordinary reader, nor too discursive to leave no impression. The salient features of China's history are presented in a manner that will appeal to the British reader. For instance, when we read that the Emperor K'anghi abandoned a certain Minister of his, the incident is impressed as corresponding to the action of Charles the First when he abandoned Straford. Then again the larger events are explained. The events leading up to the rise of a certain dynasty are grouped and described so as to make "history intelligible" and one goes through the two large volumes with a pleasant sense of travelling the easy road to knowledge.

Another characteristic of the author is his sympathy. He does not write from an outside point of view. He seeks to understand the Chinese, he seeks to make others understand them, and he shows a sympathy and appreciation which other historians would do well to cultivate. In illustration we would quote his words in summing up the reign of the Emperor K'anghi: "It is only needful now, in drawing to a close our description of this long and eventful reign, to say a few words on the subject of the personal character of the prince of whose career not the least notable incident was that it witnessed the consolidation of the remarkable Manchu conquest." We have seen K'anghi as he appears from the public acts and magnificent exploits of his reign. They show him wise, courageous, magnanimous, and sagacious as the sovereign of a vast Empire and of a multitudinous people. His private life, and those minor traits which so often reveal the true man better than his set conduct on the platform of public life, confirm the view impressed upon us by the record of his reign. The character of few rulers will bear the same searching investigation as his will. In the smallest affairs he seems to have been truly great, and his virtue was conspicuous in all he undertook.

Even when he comes to write of the advent of the foreigner and the attempts of the Chinese to resist the inevitable he does not fail to explain their duplicity and deceit, ascribing it of course to a sense of patriotism rather than to perversity or wickedness. It is unfortunate that the historian could not take into view the more recent happenings in the Empire, such as the prospect of a constitution, but that history of course is still in the making.

The All-Rail Route. London: Messrs. Christophers.

This handbook to the journey by the Trans-Siberian Railway between Europe and the Far East is of considerable value, especially to the traveller from home. The author of "The All-Rail Route" made the journey from Bombay to London last year, visiting the chief places of interest, and presents a very useful account of the trip, supplemented with a quantity of practical information. Apparently he liked Hongkong. He remarked that it was so cold here that the "residents were going about in furs." Probably some were. It is interesting to note that he advises the ordinary tourist to go through Siberia without halting at any of the towns, as accommodation is limited. The photographs are of variable value, and some could with advantage be omitted.

Three Modern Seers. By Mrs. HAVELock ELLIS. London: Stanley Paul & Co.

Though not so well known in the realm of literature as her husband, whose contributions to advanced thought and philosophy have established a considerable reputation, Mrs. Havelock Ellis is a lecturer of no mean ability. But though this be her forte, she has found time for other activities, and several publications from her pen have been favourably received. Her latest effort is well described as a "fascinating exposition of the teaching of James Hinton, Nietzsche and Edward Carpenter." The first was a remarkable genius, too little understood, and Mrs. Havelock Ellis endeavours to make his mystical message more clear. A she points out, many of his ideas, expressed in somewhat startling language, doubtless gave the world a wrong impression of this original thinker. "It has to be admitted that he lacked ballast. Practically every genius does. Still,

James Hinton is worth understanding or trying to understand. Nietzsche has many admirers, and the exposition of his philosophy will be as welcome to those already acquainted with his works as to those who have yet to make their acquaintance. Edward Carpenter, who might be termed the Walt Whitman of England, is also presented. "His philosophy has a subtle suggestiveness for everyday use in politics, economics, morals, domesticity, and all the complexities of modern civilisation." "Carpenter's value as a reformer is, that his message or philosophy can be applied equally to the right making of a pudding or the fine framing of new national laws, and yet the very pitch of his message has to do with the things which are not temporal, but eternal." Sentences like these illumine the treatise. They sum up the characteristics and teaching of the philosopher, and they reveal the sympathy and insight of the writer as well as the force and beauty of her style.

AIRMAN KILLED.

TRAGEDY AT FLYING MEETING.

A brilliant opening of the grand flying week of Rhine, where eighty aeroplanes were assembled, was marred by a terrible accident on July 23rd.

At ten minutes past six the Antoinette monoplane driven by M. Charles Wichter suddenly collapsed at a height of 500 feet and crashed to the ground with the airman, who was killed instantly.

I had just written in my despatch, says The Daily Mail correspondent, of the stupor of impression produced by the progress of man's conquest of the air, as revealed by to-day's marvellous flights, when, looking over to where a covey of aeroplanes was encircling the eastern pylon, I saw an Antoinette monoplane, gliding down from a good height, suddenly fold up like an umbrella and drop straight to earth. It fell in its track a great white remnant of wing, which flapped slowly to the ground.

A squadron of Dragons who were first on the ground found the airman dead beneath the fragments of his apparatus. His skull was driven deep into the ground and the vertebral column was broken.

I ran a mile across ploughed fields and through crops, and found the remains of the monoplane in an outfield. M. Levasseur, builder and designer of the aeroplane, quivering with emotion, was seeking among the debris. The ambulance had already removed the body to the aerodrome hospital. His friends begged M. Levasseur to be calm. M. Levasseur was there with M. Farnan, while a boy, with tears running down his face, tore off fragments of the wings as souvenirs of his dead master.

The tragedy was seen by M. Wichter's wife, who watched her husband's flight through her glasses from the sheds—much as Mrs. Elton-Brown witnessed the death of that modern Icarus her husband when he fell into the sea at San Sebastian.

The accident was caused through the wings of the aeroplane folding up above the airman's head. An officer who saw his fall from close by says the airman stood in his seat and clutched the folded wings as he fell.

M. Wichter, who was a workman at the Antoinette school at Mourmelon, was making his first appearance in public. He flew to the Rhine Aerodrome from Mourmelon yesterday and made a splendid flight this morning, covering twenty-eight miles in forty-three minutes. This afternoon he made a wonderful flight in very heavy rain, and this performance was the cause of his death. It is thought the rain may have injured the structure of the machine.

He flew nearly sixteen miles in drenching rain and continued circling the aerodrome after the rain had stopped and a gorgeous rainbow spanned the eastern horizon. We who saw M. Wichter, his white wings bathed in the purple light, will long remember his last flight as a noble prelude to his passing.

The accident was a tragic finale to a day of wonderful impressions. Those who had come to the second Rheims meeting with the belief that it would not greatly surpass last year's historic "grande semaine" were surprised as aeroplanes after aeroplanes took the air and winged away to join the flock of huge curvetting, plunging birds already aloft.

SIX FLYING ACCIDENTS.

Six aeroplanes were damaged in little more than an hour at the end of the first All-British flying meeting at Wolverhampton on July 2nd.

The British airman, anxious to show what they could do, and disgusted with the bad weather which had all the week rendered flying almost impossible, braved a highly treacherous wind. First Mr. Cecil Grace roared and swayed through the air for two circuits of the narrow aerodrome before his engine began to misfire. He failed to clear some iron railings and charged them with the speed of express, scattering a gap in the wire and then, as if by a miracle, the pilot crawled from the wreckage uninjured.

Messrs. Grahame-White, Gibbs, and Rolls then raced round the track together in the wind, each at a different elevation. Mr. Rolls was first, Mr. Grahame-White followed him, and close behind came Mr. Gibbs on his racing Farman biplane. The back-draught from Mr. Grahame-White's propeller caught Mr. Gibbs' biplane, which quivered, stood still, twisted round in the air, and crashed to the ground. It was removed piecemeal from the track with scarcely a spar broken. The airman escaped with nothing worse than some bad bruises.

Mr. Ogilvie, flying his Short-Wright biplane, was caught by a downward gust and hurled to the ground from a height of 60ft. Again, as if by a miracle, the pilot crawled from the wreckage uninjured.

Mr. J. Radley insisted upon fighting the wind upon his Blériot monoplane, and the crowd held its breath. Another accident seemed certain, and it came. The rear planes suddenly rose, and the monoplane dived head foremost to the earth. It lay shattered and unrecognisable. Motor-cars shot out towards the wreck. Before they reached it Mr. Radley, quite cool and collected, shook himself free of the wreck.

JAPAN'S NEW CUSTOMS TARIFF.

The following letter to The Times is of more than ordinary interest:

Sir,—I must apologise for sending this letter to you instead of to an engineering journal, but as The Times, besides its leading position in England, is the only newspaper whose opinion is considered of any value by the Japanese Government and people my reason for doing so is obvious.

Those resident in this country fully recognize that the Japanese Government is justified in increasing the rates of import duty so that the national industries and manufactures may be encouraged especially as the extension of these will provide a future for the thousands of most industrious students who at present have nothing to look forward to after leaving school or one of the universities. At the same time no British can possibly admit that Japan's best friend should in consequence suffer out of all proportion to other countries. That this will be the case the following will prove:

The present rates of import duty on machine tools, cranes, hydraulic machinery, pumps, steam, oil and gas engines, spinning and weaving machinery, boilers, &c., is 15 per cent. ad valorem, and on printing machinery 5 per cent. ad valorem, the imports from all countries being charged alike.

The new duties coming into force next year, instead of being charged on value as at present, will be charged specifically, and in the case of the above-mentioned articles and many others by weight. As British machines, producing the same results, are heavier than those of other countries, they will have to bear a proportionately higher rate. To show how this works out I give the results of 35 calculations on the duty now and duty will have on printing machines and how we shall be placed in competition with other countries interested in this market.

The new duties are as follows:—
"Printing machinery not weighing more than 250 kilograms (552lb.), 20 per cent; all others, 20 per cent 100 lb. (45.36 kg.) per 132.277 lb., or 110 lb. 11d. per ton avoirdupois."

Leaving out the first clause, for no printing machines are so light as mentioned in it, the second need only be considered. By it machines of 250 kilograms or less will have to pay a duty of 20 per cent, whereas German machines will, in like manner, only pay duties of 10 per cent, to 17 per cent, and American from 9 per cent, to 18 per cent. Is this fair?

It might also be asked—Is it wise? For it comes to this, with almost all machinery, that the higher the price and the flimsier the construction the less will be the percentage of duty charged.

When the new duties are in force the Japanese Government will practically say to its nationals:—Though we are aware that heavy machines run smoother and last longer than light machines do, still, they are also less liable to break down, and that two machines producing the same results be offered you at the same price, we will tax you a larger amount if you purchase the heavier one.

Englishmen have always pointed themselves on the substantiality of their machines, but as far as this market is concerned, this will in future prove to be a disadvantage—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

T. REDDING JOHNSTON.

Tokyo, June 2.

EMPIRE'S MARKSMEN.

ENGLAND'S VICTORY.

Under the most trying weather conditions, the United Kingdom's team of eight marksmen vanquished the four other teams of Colonial competitors in the Empire match at Bisley on July 2nd. It was in several respects a most notable triumph, the scores being as follows:—United Kingdom, 2,177 points; Canada, 2,105 points; Australia, 2,043 points; India, 1,973 points; and Singapore, 1,973 points.

It was truly a magnificent contest, marred only by the recurrent fury of the rain-squalls. But for these there can be no doubt that the scores would have stood considerably higher all round. At times the downpours were like the falling waters of cascades, and the targets were rendered temporarily invisible. There was the discomfort, for the marksmen, of the chill temperature of a wintry July, in addition to the thorough drenching from beating showers as the men lay prone, from which neither oilskins nor macintoshes could save them. It was not until the 900 yards and the 1,000 yards ranges, that the targets came to be missed by the riflemen, and "outers" (2's) and "magpies" (3's) were recorded instead of "inners" and "bull-eyes." The India and the Singapore teams suffered most in these respects. Doubtless, but for their peculiarly bad luck at the last range, the United Kingdom team would have been victorious. The Canadian team, however, represented by the other prizes on the last Saturday of the Bisley meeting. As the Empire Match goes on circuit from year to year, it is probable that in 1911 it will be shot for in Canada.

RUBBER NEWS.

JAYA RUBBER AND PRODUCE.

The report for the year ended December 31 last states that the planting of Para rubber and Iloilo coffee in the old coffee land on Kali Muvana has been continued. The area under cocoa has been extended, and also interplanted with Robusta coffee. The coffee crop amounted to 599,655 pounds, which included the maiden crop from the Robusta coffee. This latter variety shows splendid growth. The Para rubber continues to grow well, and it is expected that some trees will be ready to tap towards the end of this year. Castella rubber is reported to have made very fine growth, but the methods of tapping adopted have not so far resulted in a satisfactory yield. The Aengano black of forest land has been sold for £800, and this amount has been credited to the capital cost of the company's estates. The interest for the year ended December 31st at the rate of 4 per cent, on the subscribed capital has been paid as guaranteed by the vendors.

BUKIT RAJAH RUBBER COMPANY.

The report for the year ended March 31st states that the net amount at credit of profit and loss account is £114,516. It is proposed to pay a final dividend of 90 per cent, on the ordinary shares (making 150 per cent, in all), to place to reserve fund £7,500, to depreciation £1,000, and to carry forward to next year a balance of £5,516. During the year about 125,000 trees were tapped, and the yield of rubber amounted to 314,778 lb., giving an average yield of 2 1/2 lb. per tree. There are about 290,000 rubber trees on the 2,504 acres planted with product. The manager estimates the following crops for the current year:—Rubber, 350,000 lb.; coffee, 341 pounds; coconuts, 280,000 nuts. A resolution will be proposed to increase the directors' fees from £500 to £750 per annum with a commission of half per cent, on the gross annual dividends.

SUNGEI BULOH RUBBER COMPANY.

At the fifth ordinary general meeting held at 1, Great Winchester-street, Mr. G. A. Talbot, who presided, said that considerable expenditure had been incurred during the past year on weeding. The estate was now, however, in a position to enter the productive stage. They had 1,440 acres planted with rubber at a cost of, approximately, £45,000, including the first buildings and machinery. The company's capital would be exhausted by September, and it was the board's intention to make a further issue of shares towards the end of the year. The shares would be offered to the shareholders pro rata at a premium. He moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Mr. James Warren, who gave an account of his recent visit to the estate, and said that in 1911 they would be tapping any sizeable tract over 240 acres of the 1906 planting, and over 560 acres of the 1907 planting. The report was adopted.

CICELY RUBBER ESTATE COMPANY.

At the general meeting held at the Cannon-street Hotel, Dr. S. Rideal, who presided, congratulated the shareholders on the fact that the directors could pay 140 per cent, on the preference and 135 per cent, on the ordinary shares for the past year. For the 85,280 lb. of rubber which was harvested during the year the net average price realized was 18.44d. per lb., as against only 14.7d. per lb. for the previous year. During the current year they would be tapping 450 acres, equal to about half of the estate. The report was adopted.

SUNGEI CHIOH RUBBER ESTATE COMPANY.

At the annual meeting held at the London Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Alexander Thomson, who presided, moved the adoption of the report. He said that with the closing of the accounts on December 31st last the company passed from the purely development stage into that of a dividend-paying undertaking. For the current year a crop of 45,000 lb. was estimated, and there appeared every probability that this quantity would be secured. The latest prices indicated that the new factory and machinery were all but completed, and he anticipated that by this time everything was in full working order. The report was adopted.

SUNGEI SALAK RUBBER COMPANY.

The second ordinary general meeting held at the London Commercial Sales Rooms, Mining-lane, Sir George A. Pilkington, who presided, moved the adoption of the report, and congratulated the shareholders on the steady development of their properties. Tapping had been commenced, and he hoped that the small details which go so far to make up the general appearance of a well-dressed woman.

MALAYAN RUBBER AND AGENCY.

At the statutory meeting of the Malayan Rubber, Loan, and Agency Corporation (Limited), the chairman said the shareholders would observe that there was an item for underwriting commission in the payments they had made. He did not think that they had given too much in the way of cash commission. It would be very much better for the company in the future to have paid a small amount in the way of underwriting rather than to have a very large cash commission. He hoped that the shareholders would achieve success in this company would have a good future. In that event they would have an opportunity of issuing their shares at a substantial premium, and not having constant calls upon them for shares at par, as had been the case in many other companies. He hoped to be able to announce in a few days that they had obtained a settlement and an official quotation on the Stock Exchange. They would no doubt have to make a call upon the shareholders before very long, because there was business going which would probably require money. They had had several propositions put before them, which he hoped would lead to satisfactory business in the future. Of course this company was to a certain extent a finance company, but it must mainly depend on the success of the rubber industry. He wished to emphasize that a fall in the price of rubber was not in any way detrimental to this company. He thought it would be better for the rubber industry as a whole if the price of rubber was lower. Of course at the present time there was a vast amount of adulteration going on, and people were searching on all sides to find substitutes.

They had got a body of directors, officers, and officials who were closely connected with work in the East, and with all the advantages that the company possessed he could not help thinking that there was a bright future before the concern.

THE VALUATION OF RUBBER PROPERTIES.

The Rubber Investor, in a recent issue published an article on the valuation of the Malayan Rubber Estates which was taken from the Straits Times. The publication of this article in an English newspaper has drawn considerable attention to the valuation of rubber estates. It is now stated that the Government of the Federated Malay States intends to take slopes against those who value estates without possessing an authority from the Government to act as valuers. This, of course, will do very little good, as everybody who takes out a first-class licence, which costs ten dollars, will become a Government valuer. If the Government of the Federated Malay States desires to protect English investors, and I have no doubt that it does, then it should insist that valuers possess certain qualifications beyond the fact that they have seen a rubber estate. The Rubber Investor has on many occasions pointed out the great disparity that exists between the values of the different estates. Valuation is the very essence of rubber investment. Rubber planting is an industry, and it can only be carried on successfully if the capital of the company is in proportion to the producing value of the estate. The public has hitherto known so little about rubber that it has taken many things for granted, but it learns each day, and it now refuses to subscribe to the value of a piece of names on the prospectus of a rubber estate. We shall always see rubber at 10s. a pound, and nothing is more certain than the fact that working costs on rubber estates will gradually mount up, whilst the price of rubber is equally certain to fall. Therefore the valuation of an estate becomes of immense importance. Take for example the Soembar Ajoie. This estate is valued by Mr. B. Ogley at £31,551 for the 1,390 acres. In October, 1907, the same promoter—Messrs. Java Plantations, Ltd.—valued 2,371 acres, with an issued capital of £25,500, so that we got in 1907 over a thousand acres more land at less than half the price. It seems to me there must be something wrong somewhere, either Java Plantations are absurdly undervalued, or Soembar Ajoie is grossly overcapitalized. Rubber is an industrial undertaking, and must be treated from a hard business point of view. The Straits Times is very outspoken, and it is doing a great service to the investment in its persistent criticism of the valuation of estates. Only the other day it pointed out a difference of many thousands of pounds between the valuation of two well-known men, but this was a local property which has not yet been put on the London market. It would be as well, however, for investors carefully to watch the prospectuses of Malay properties as they appear, and note the valuations. It is quite a moot point whether promoters are legally entitled to omit from their prospectuses valuations that differ from those printed in the document itself. Certainly, if the directors have any knowledge of a higher valuation they are running a great risk in omitting all mention of it when they ask the public to subscribe. It is the omission of a material fact; indeed, the most material fact connected with the property.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN GIRLHOOD: A COMPARISON.

In England it is the boy of the family who is first considered: in America it is the girl. Every roughness is smoothed from her path: she is, as a rule, spared all responsibility, and if necessary, innumerable sacrifices are made in order that her girlhood should be as gay and as free from care as possible. In short, her life is apparently to be one perpetual record of enjoyment with practically few or no serious demands upon her time.

The spheres of girl-life are sharply defined. Thus the "college" girl and the "society" girl represent entirely different sides of girl-life. The "society" girl is perhaps the most characteristic product of her country and the one to be most frequently encountered. Adaptability being one of the key-notes of her character, coupled with an unusually quick and observant mind, she is a delightful companion. "In her thirst for 'being up to date' she is equally interested in clothes and culture. Clubs such as the Rector Club and the Magazine Club digest the world for her, and she is kept by her ready-witted lozenges containing the essence of the day and every subject. Her conversation is, therefore, usually brilliant, especially as she always possesses that sense of duty to herself and to her hostess which causes her to exert every faculty in order to show herself off in the best possible light. She has the infinite capacity for taking pains in her dress which amounts in this case to positive genius. Her English sister, with considerably more natural possibilities, such as complexion, hair, and general health, lacks the realization as a duty of good dressing and best attention to small details which go so far to make up the general appearance of a well-dressed woman.

Owing to the state of politics both national and municipal, it is almost impossible for the women of the country to take any real interest in such topics as they do in England; and nothing more surprises the average American than the interest and deep knowledge which English women display in political affairs. The majority of American women are not interested in questions of national importance; their interests rarely extend beyond the sphere in which they live, sometimes to the State, but rarely to the nation at large. It is a curious and notable fact that in the 'rearest democracy in the world the trend of feeling is far more individualistic and local than collective and national. There are very few links, usually none, between the American girl and her fellow-citizens. She has her own set; but the lower classes, so termed, hardly come within her horizon. At any rate far less so than is the case with her English sister, in whose mind the idea is still so strongly implanted that the well-being of those who work, and are still more or less, subordinates is a matter of genuine concern.

Among the American girls the debutantes of the year keep exclusively to themselves; so do the girls who have been out for a couple of years, while between girls and married women there is very little social intercourse. Obviously the American girl is a great loser by this separation of the sexes, for she misses the immense advantage of hearing about life from older, and therefore more mature, minds. Her self-sufficiency is largely the product of her education, which, as a rule, has been gleaned from books. Moreover, as her associations are with a new country and with new enterprises, she has little reverence for antiquity, whether of person or of custom, and utility or pleasure are the chief guides of her judgment. True, she has a curious admiration for the past, and is, on the whole, more romantic than her English cousin; but it does not enter into her everyday life. The English girl, on the whole, compares rather unfavourably with the American as far as culture and its application are concerned. The country life of the majority of English girls renders them somewhat dull as social factors, even if it gives them that knowledge of nature, as a birthright, which is denied to the town-dwelling American girl. The contrast in life is between a growth of nature with the most artificial of products of the most 'up-to-date' community. On the other hand, in England it is, after all, customary for every girl to be interested in some form or other of social and philanthropic work, whereas in America that work, admirably done as it is, is done by a class of women who are highly educated indeed, but who have given up their lives to that one object and form a class apart. The men whom the American girls meet as a rule, men of her own city, who have a shrewd knowledge of business and who pride themselves on being able "to size up" a man. They have probably travelled to New York and to Chicago, and their standard measure is outward success, not perhaps always of dollars, but invariably of prominence in the public eye. The English girl is frequently brought in contact with life as it is lived in different parts of the Empire, for some of her men-folk are sure to be possessed by Wanderlust, which has so often developed into the power of colonizing. The interest in her life are world-wide instead of local, and this is reflected in all she does. Her very charities extend from Lebanon to Lombardy, and her interest in sport from polo in India to cricket in Australia. These are the two keynotes of an English girl's life—politics and sport—and they are both indulged in with that cleanliness and vigour which are only possible through health of body and mind, and, perhaps, an accompanying element of rustic robustness.

By contrast the American girl is colder and less emotional than the English girl, and her attitude towards men is one of unflinching good comradeship. Yet at the same time women are considered by the American man as a race apart, who must be placed upon a pedestal and propitiated by much attention and many offerings. In a sense the chivalric instinct is almost too deeply implanted in the American man, and in many of his ideas concerning women he is, although he would be horrified to be told so, curiously medieval. And here again we come upon one of those deep lines of cleavage which divide the American ideals for womanhood from the English. In England, before marriage, the man and the girl see comparatively little of each other, but after marriage the common life is a necessity and the woman must be prepared to study his interests and to make them more or less her own. In America, before marriage, the man and the girl are excellent friends and comrades, enjoying much freedom in their intercourse, but after marriage the two seem to lead separate lives. The man is wholly wrapped up in his business, and the woman, when her work in the house is over, devotes most of her energies to the pursuit of social pleasures. In fact, they cannot really be said to lead a common life. To a large extent this is the man's fault; for he as a rule considers his wife such a delicate object that she is, so to speak, put under a glass case, and all cares and worries and even trifling responsibilities are carefully kept from her. She takes no active part in the man's everyday life, for he is often completely ignorant of his financial position, and is absolutely dependent upon him for every penny. The idea of marriage settlements or a definite allowance is abhorrent to the American mind; and yet, when all is said and done, the American woman, with all her independence, is the most dependent of women; for is not he who holds the purse-strings after all the real master?

In no other country does one feel more profoundly that the women are largely what the men have made them. It is more than probable that the large number of divorces in America are due to the unconscious desire on the part of the woman to find a real partner and comrade in life instead of the mere financial agent that the average American man is contented to be.

It seems well-nigh impossible that with all her wonderful brilliancy and energy of mind, the American woman should fail in the future to bring her great talents to bear on the national life. At present these talents seem largely wasted; but there are signs that the awakening is at hand, and one cannot but believe that it will not be long before the American girl and woman awaken to the fact of the important part they have to play in the social welfare of their country.

To-day the English girl and woman seem to be in a state of transition, and one can only hope with confidence that the English women of the future will be able to apply their natural practical instincts to the solution of the many social problems of the day, in which they already take so large an interest. At the same time they would do well to take a leaf out of the book of their American sisters in the art of making the best of themselves both in looks and conversation. It is also about time that the English girl should abandon the attitude of past generations of her sex in regarding every man in the light of a possible husband, and should begin to cultivate that habit of mind which makes real friendship and comradeship between the sexes a possibility.—Times.
